How do we mitigate the impact of emotion, heavily filtered information, and biases?	Votes
Let them know you are listening and understand what they are saying.	2
offer to listen before we speak and try to change minds	1
This info you are sharing is important for everyone to know. Also, mix people up in group work. It's uncomfortable, but important.	1
Providing a safe space, awareness of breathing	1
Click the green circle with the plus sign and start typing. When you are finished, click outside the sticky note to post.	0
Susan - I tend to rely way too heavily on facts, even when I know they don't work.	0
Honestly, not really sure! It would be interesting if the whole algorithm thing didn't exist, or if it would give opposing views/ideas	0
Try to ask non-threatening, open-ended questions.	0
